The We the People difference

Today's Voices. Tomorrow's Leaders.

Dear Esteemed Faculty Members and Delegates,

Thank you for choosing to participate in this enriching international diplomatic experience — a dynamic and inclusive Model United Nations conference designed for secondary school students. We are thrilled to welcome you to the upcoming session this February, and we look forward to an engaging and inspiring conference together.

At We the People, our mission is to cultivate today's most promising minds into tomorrow's global leaders. Through an immersive educational model, we provide delegates with the opportunity to explore diplomacy, international relations, and critical global issues in a collaborative and thought-provoking environment.

ACADEMICS

A foundation of knowledge-based debate

Thanks to our highly trained staff and the diversity of our international participants, We the People fosters a culture of rigorous, thoughtful, and informed debate. To support academic excellence, our team produces:

- 01 Comprehensive background guides developed in collaboration with subject-matter experts.
- 02 Update papers that reflect the latest international developments.

Commitment to Realism & Relevance

We the People strives to mirror the real-world operations of the United Nations. Each committee:

- ◆ Simulates an actual UN body
- ◆ Tackles current, globally relevant issues
- ◆ Encourages historical and contemporary research

This commitment to realism deepens delegate engagement and provides a more authentic diplomatic experience.

We're glad to speak with faculty and delegates about the pedagogical foundation of our program.

Understanding the United Nations

A primer for WEMUN delegates

What is the UN?

The United Nations is an international organization composed of 193 sovereign Member States. Its mission is to address challenges that transcend borders, including:

- ◆ International peace and security
- ◆ Humanitarian aid and disaster response
- ◆ Cultural and social preservation
- ◆ Global health and economic development
- ◆ Combating international crime and terrorism

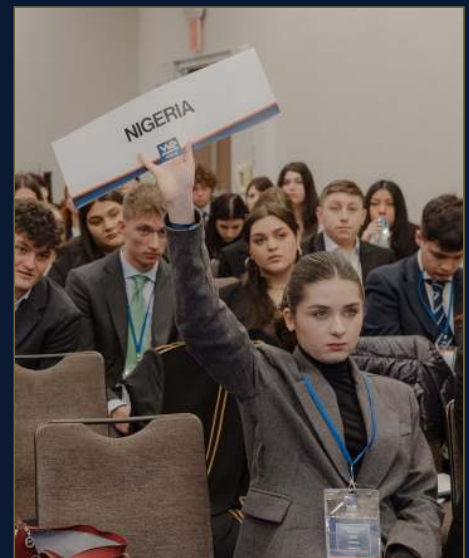

The UN acts as a platform for states to collaborate, negotiate, and act on shared global concerns.

Inclusive Participation & Dynamic Committees

In a world marked by constant change, the strength of diplomacy lies in the voices of those willing to engage. We the People embraces this belief: our conference is designed to encourage meaningful participation by every delegate.

Through well-structured rules of procedure, our committees ensure that each student can contribute, collaborate, and lead. We believe that robust debate and respectful dialogue are essential to building both understanding and consensus.

In our committees, delegates work together to draft resolutions and reports, reinforcing the importance of diplomacy, compromise, and international cooperation.

Educational Focus, Even in Recognition

While awards are a respected tradition in Model UN, our primary emphasis is on:

- ◆ Learning
- ◆ Inclusion
- ◆ Diplomatic growth
- ◆ Substantive engagement

Our award criteria reflect these values, recognizing delegates who exhibit not only leadership, but also integrity, collaboration, and deep understanding.

Just as valuable as recognition is the opportunity to connect with peers from around the world — to build friendships, exchange ideas, and become part of a global youth network.

These materials ensure delegates are well-equipped to navigate complex policy issues and contribute meaningfully to their committees.

A Dedicated & Prepared Staff

Our Directors and Assistant Directors undergo months of intensive training — including simulations and workshops — to prepare for the academic and logistical demands of the conference.

Every position paper submitted by the feedback deadline receives personalized, constructive feedback from our team. We are committed to an inclusive and supportive environment where each delegate feels heard, respected, and empowered — regardless of background or experience level.

In summary...

The United Nations represents an extraordinary experiment in international cooperation — and We the People MUN offers students a front-row seat to its simulated processes.

By participating, you will:

01

Tackle pressing global issues

02

Hone your negotiation & leadership skills

03

Deepen your understanding of diplomacy

04

Contribute to a more thoughtful, connected global community

AND THAT'S NOT ALL

WEMUN brings delegates face-to-face with world-renowned personalities. In 2026, Academy Award-winning actress and humanitarian Whoopi Goldberg took the stage to deliver a powerful and inspiring speech on youth empowerment — encouraging students to believe in their voices and become the leaders the world needs.
